THE GROWTH OF THE SCHOOL.

The Morgan County High School's growth is something beyond what was expected by those in charge. It was expected that it would eventually build up, but no one was prepared for the sudden awakening of the people to its advantages. The pupils from the county that are in attendance is far greater than the management expected, and still they come.

Considering that the new school law requires all future applicants for certificates to have high school training, it behooves the citizens of the county to prepare so that this training can be had at home. Ample school buildings and dormitories are needed. The best plan to secure these is to vote a sufficient bond issue to secure the funds. We are informed that the present tax rate would meet the requirements in from six to eight years, but the County Board of Education has no power to appropriate beyond the revenue of one year. The bond issue would not increase taxes, but would merely make the revenue of the next few years available now. It is a matter of vital importance to the people of the county to provide the facilities for educating their children at home.

A HOPEFUL SIGN.

George L. Martin, of Louisville, defaulted for a large sum and was captured and brought back for trial. Having stolen thousands and being possessed of influential friends he was able to employ the best counsel and effect a compromise and get an agreed sentence of eight years. But they reckoned without the jury. When the plea of guilty was entered and the case submitted the jury ignored the "compromise" and brought in a verdict of ten years in the penitentiary—a light sentence even at that.

This is an evidence that the juries are tired of the "compromises" between the Commonwealth and the criminals, and that they will meet out justice if given the opportunity. The law-abiding public in Louisville owe much to the Louisville Evening Times in securing the ten-year sentence, for that paper gave much space to giving the inside facts in the case. After all, the newspapers are the greatest factors in law enforcement.

WILL WE TRY FOR GOOD ROADS?

The need of good roads is apparent to everybody, and it is generally conceded that they are the salvation of the country. But when it comes to the question of paying for them a great many people balk. They don't consider that bad roads are costing us more than goods would cost us. We must face the fact that good roads cost money. But they are worth all they cost and we can not progress without them.

Under the recent decision of the Court of Appeals the county cannot lend the money to the State, but we can let it be known that we are willing to do our part and as a unit bring pressure to bear on the Governor to call an extra session of the Legislature to provide means for the State to finance the roads.

Agitation is needed. Be a good roads booster.

FORDS in Morgan county.

I have on hand any kind of Ford you want. Touring Car, Roadster or Truck. Can deliver anywhere in Morgan county any day. Get one now to be ready for spring. You can run them a month before we can get them here in the spring.

When it comes to repairs, we have any thing from a new body to a pin in the wheel. They are genuine Ford parts.

If you are thinking of a Tractor come and try one that was used by Mr. Henry and ask him what a Ford Tractor will do.

Prices are the same everywhere plus war tax and delivery charges.

SEEK EVIDENCE OF THEORY

Scientific Expedition Endeavoring to Prove Existence of Land Bridge Across the Atlantic.

The gathering of further evidence to support the theory that there was once a land bridge stretching across the Atlantic from Newfoundland to Great Britain and thence to Scandinavia is one of the purposes of a geological expedition from Princeton university which will visit Newfoundland this summer. Similar parties from Princeton have conducted investigations along the southern bays of the island during the past three years and besides obtaining valuable collections of rocks, minerals and fossils, have made discoveries tending to solve various geological puzzles.

Prof. Gilbert Van Ingen, who has been at St. Johns, N. F., with two of the expeditions, found fossils bearing a marked resemblance to those unearthed in Wales and Sweden. This led him to formulate the theory that in prehistoric times it may have been possible for animals to travel on dry land across what now is the Atlantic ocean. He considered that this was supported by the fact that an underwater shelf of rock, upon which many telegraph cables have been laid in recent years, extends across the Atlantic.

UPLIFT MOVEMENT IN EGYPT

Women Are Now Being Educated, and Only Opposition Comes From Older Men of Country.

Egypt may seem far away and conservative. But it is not too far away or too conservative to be affected by the progress which is being made by the woman's movement today. Thirteen of the government schools for the training of teachers have been especially set apart for woman students and now have an attendance of 2,030 girls with 42 trained woman teachers. In one of these schools there were 138 applications for 13 student vacancies. Last year 2,867 small village schools had an attendance of 22,002 girls.

It is said that the old men of the country are opposed to this change in attitude toward women, but the younger men are more advanced in their ideas and want their wives to be educated. Some of them are sending their young wives to school or arranging to have them taught at home.

What this change means to the women themselves may be imagined on reading this description of her life as given by an uneducated harem woman: "I sit on one couch for a time, and when I get tired I cross over and sit on the other one."

WHY ATHLETES GET "STALE"

Sometimes Keep Their Men at Work Without Proper Resting Periods.

The question of short versus long periods of practice in training the human muscles for any particular kind of work is obviously one having far-reaching application. Some interesting experiments on this subject have been carried out by Dr. K. S. Lashley of Johns Hopkins university. Acquisition of skill in archery was selected as the subject of observation. Twenty untrained persons were divided into three groups. One group shot five arrows with the English longbow per day; another twenty shots per day, and the third forty shots. The results showed conclusively that the group shooting only five times a day improved in accuracy with less expenditure of time in practice than was required by either of the other groups for the same amount of improvement. A report on the experiments says: "The relatively greater efficiency of short periods of practice continuing for many days is in accordance with the results of the study of animals and of speech habits in man, and indicates that in training to muscular feats, in both animals and men, the length of practice periods required is usually too great for maximum efficiency."

SOME GOOD IN PURPLE PATCH

Absolute Condemnation of "Flashes" in Composition Can Hardly Be Said to Be Warranted.

Every textbook on rhetoric contains a warning against "purple passages," and nearly every literary critic has, at one time or another, held them up to wrath. This censure needs some qualification.

A purple patch may not be bad in itself; its fault may be that it accentuates the poverty of the surrounding texture—that it is not a true and rational effect and development of style.

Its writer has often been compared with a man who wears a drab coat which has been mended by a piece of gay cloth designed for some gorgeous wearer.

But if the drab coat offends our eyes, why should we deny them the pleasure of looking on the splash of vivid color?

To write a sentence ending with a preposition is a misfortune; to split an infinitive is a crime; but the man who composes a purple passage may retort on his critics by saying that he was giving a sample of what he could do, had he taken more pains or were he more happily inspired.

PERVENSITY OF THINGS

"IT BEATS all how fate puts a crimp in a man's fondest ambitions," said the retired merchant. "Recently I have been hankering for an old-fashioned boiled dinner, composed of corn beef and all the standard vegetables. I mentioned the matter several times, and my wife said she would give the hired girl a holiday and get me up a boiled dinner, such as we used to have in the halcyon days. The banquet was scheduled for yesterday, and I looked forward to it like a hungry wolf. I couldn't think of anything else for three days. And when the meal was dished up I had an attack of jumping toothache, and was jumping over the chairs with my head under my arm."

"That's always the way in this world, doggone it," commented the hotel keeper. "Just as sure as you look forward to something you're going to run up against a disappointment that will break your heart."

"Last week I had so much business I was on my feet day and night. I didn't get any sleep to speak of for several nights, and my eyes felt like hard-boiled eggs. I was just dead on my feet I was so played out. I looked forward to the time when I could snore off a few lengths of slumber just as you looked forward to that boiled fuddler."

"At last things stacked up and I went up to my room at seven o'clock in the evening, prepared to sleep round the clock for as much longer as I felt necessary. I was so drowsy I could hardly see to get my shoes off, and I heaved a sigh of relief when I crawled in between the sheets. But before I had been there three minutes old Algieason came along with his brass band and began playing selections under my window. The congressman from this district was occupying the room next to mine, and those in good muscled were surrounding him, probably hoping to be appointed postmaster before long. They played every blotted tune you ever heard of, and I had to leave my own room and go to one at the back of the hotel."

"That room hadn't been used for a long time, and things weren't in good repair. I climbed into the bed and was snoring a few quotations from the classics, when all the slats came down at once and I landed on the floor on my ear with my feet up on the foot of the bed. I thought my back was broken in three places, but I managed to get up, and then I liked back to my own room. I had left the window open when I yelled at Algieason and threw some furniture at his musicians, and I was so sleepy I forgot to close it."

"The bed was right up against the window, and I was just getting sleep once more when it began to rain. About forty gallons of water blew in on me before I could get the doggone window closed. I had to rustle around or a dry night shirt and some sheets and things, and by that time I was pretty near desperate. I don't know of anything more aggravating than to be dying for a good old-fashioned sleep and then be unable to make connections."

"At last I got into bed again, all snug and comfortable, and was doing some ground and lofty sleeping. Then along came a guest who mistook my room for his own, which was on the floor above. It happened that his key fitted the lock of my door, so he opened it and came in. When he saw me there he took me by the ankles and dragged me out onto the floor and sat on me, and asked me what in thunder I meant by occupying his bed, for which he had paid in advance. It took ten minutes to make things clear to him, and by that time I felt like a driving idiot."

"But I had sense enough left to get back into bed and make another try at sleeping. I had slept about twenty-seven winks when a big framed picture of my wife, which hung over the head of the bed, came down and smashed itself on my face and put my nose out of joint. Then I gave up. I put on my clothes and went down stairs and sat up all night, hoping the building wouldn't cave in on me. I didn't, but the wife was the only bit of luck I had that night."

Indefinite.

"I don't like to throw bouquets at myself, but I must say folks are afraid of my drive."

The City Bird.

"The sparrow soon adapts itself to environment."

What now?

"Saw one downtown today while was building a nest of burnt matches."

GUMPTION

Our Motto: One country, one flag, one wife at a time.
Our Aim: To tell the truth though the heavens fall.
Our Hope: To cure cussedness or kill the cusses.
By L. T. Hovermale.

THEIR FRUITAGE

The killing of one man and the perhaps fatally wounding of another in Magoffin county Sunday, alleged to have been over moonshining, is only another evidence of the conditions that lax enforcement of the law produces. Moonshining is said to have existed in that section of Magoffin county for years and it is also said that little effort at concealment was made. According to our information all of the parties to the affray were engaged in illicit distilling and that the trouble grew out of the proceeds of the illicit business. At any event the parties were said to have been intoxicated.

Yet we hear men who claim to be good citizens say that it is none of their business whether the law is enforced or not. They say that it is the duty of the officers to apprehend the lawbreakers, yet they refuse to give the officers any information that would help them to locate the moonshiners. Potential murder lurks in every illicit still in the country. Any man's son is likely to become embroiled in the net of crime that is fostered by liquor. Any mother's heart is likely to bleed for a son lured from the teachings of his youth and degraded by the great curse. And yet men will complacently fold their arms and say: "It is not my affair if moonshine stills are in the community." Nor do they seem to care if the bootlegger piles his trade under their very noses.

And even such tragedies as the one in Magoffin do not shake them from their apathy. Today there are doubtless numbers of men in this county, who are in no way connected with the moonshiners, who know of the existence of moonshine stills and yet do not inform the officers. Some refrain from fear of injury to person or property and others from the idea that it is none of their business. Neither is a good citizen in the true sense of the word. A coward can not be a good citizen, and the man who is so indifferent in regard to the welfare of his community as to keep silent in regard to law violations is not a good citizen. We will have to awake to the duty of citizenship. Citizens as jurors must bring in verdicts commensurate with the gravity of the crime. Citizens will have to realize their duty and inform the officers of what they know of law violations. Officers will have to be prompt to arrest and bring to justice the lawbreakers, and the courts will have to inflict certain and sure and speedy punishment if the liquor traffic is broken up.

It can be done if all will do their duty. It is acknowledging that popular government is a failure to say that crime can not be curbed. The spread of crime means the overthrow of government and the spread of anarchy. The crime wave that is sweeping over the country must be checked if the government stands and civilization endures. The peril to government, due to the demoralizing effects of the great war, is more imminent than appears to the casual observer. The lawless creed of the Bolshevik is spreading and it finds its most receptive soil in communities that are indifferent to law enforcement. It does not gather good citizens in its cult. In communities where law is enforced there is little crime. There is also a greater respect for the law. The community that is law-abiding is so because its citizens are in favor of law enforcement. A community that is lawless is so because its citizens do not care.

There are moonshine stills in Morgan county, it is said, and every indication points to such being the case. In every one of them lies the possibility of just such a tragedy as that in Magoffin. There is a possible murder in every quart of liquor that is bootlegged in the county. Some drink-crazed man is liable at any time to commit a crime. Yet some alleged good citizens sit back and say that it is none of their business if moonshining and bootlegging goes on in the county.

The enforcement of the law is the business and the duty of every man.

Government specialists do not believe that the growing of drug plants offers any unusual opportunities for profit. The department of agriculture, in a bulletin entitled, "Drug Plants Under Cultivation," calls attention to the fact that drug plants are subject to the same diseases and risks as other crops, and in addition knowledge of the best methods of cultivation and handling is less general than in the case of other and better-known crops.

On the other hand, the number of drug plants that may be grown in the United States is large. Many native medicinal plants that are found in their wild state in a few sections have been successfully cultivated in situations far beyond their natural range. In suitable soil and under favorable weather conditions the following plants have done well under cultivation in numerous places, in the central and eastern states, and if the difference in climatic conditions is not too great will probably be suitable in other regions: Anise, belladonna, burdock, carnation, catnip, camomile, cominum, coriander, digitalis, dill, echinacea, elecampane, fenichel, henbane, horhound, pennyroyal, sage, stramonium, tansy, and thyme.

CONGRATULATIONS IN ORDER

IDEAS BORN IN THE WEST

San Francisco Newspaper Thinks Little of Imagination Displayed by the East.

Like so many western ideas, the jitney is gradually making its way eastward. It has reached Philadelphia, it is an issue in Washington, it is dipping its tires in the surf at Atlantic City. The East never had imagination enough to invent such a simple matter as the jitney.

The jitney is merely an illustration. There are no new ideas of any kind in the East, except ideas among a limited circle concerning ways of getting people's money away from them. The West is America's great idea factory. The West can invent and popularize everything necessary from the jitney to the judicial recall. The East is classic, the West romantic; the East is tory, the West liberal; the East stands pat, the West keeps hopping right along.

New York city is not the nation's literary, artistic and musical center; it merely happens to have its hands on money enough to buy literature, art and music, which is quite a different thing. The New York idea ought to be dethroned. Why should New York pass on our plays and our books and our public policies when it hasn't sense enough even to invent a jitney? New York ought to get down on its knees and thank heaven that there is a West to furnish the salt to give it such savor as it has.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Johnny—Yes, father.
Fond Parent—Can you tell me how many bones there are in the human body?
Johnny—Before or after Friday.

COOL RECEPTION.

"You look sweet enough to eat," said him a freezing look.
"Do not care for icees," he made him a freezing look.
"To make you a freezing look," he made him a freezing look.

DECLINE OF TRAGEDY

"Fred called last night."
"Are you to be congratulated?"
"I think so; I got him to leave before midnight."

A HARD BARGAIN.

"My dear," said Mr. Jagson, "I wish you could have a more detached interest in hats."
"What do you mean?" asked Mrs. Jagson.
"Why, I wish you could enjoy looking at a hat in a milliner's window without desiring to possess it."
"Well," answered Mrs. Jagson, sharply, "when you reach the point where you can enjoy reading the labels on bottles without any desire to sample their contents, I'll change my attitude toward hats."

INANE QUESTION.

"Well! Well! Going fishing, old scout?" asked Boreman of Gadsoy, who was loaded down with expensive paraphernalia.
"Oh, no," answered Gadsoy, in sarcastic tones. "I bought this outfit for the express purpose of whitewashing my backyard fence."

FISH DAY.

Fond Parent—Johnny, do you study physiology at school?
Johnny—Yes, father.
Fond Parent—Can you tell me how many bones there are in the human body?
Johnny—Before or after Friday.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR NEIGHBORING VILLAGES

LIBERTY ROAD.

Eld. Harland McClure is holding a protracted meeting at the Carter school house this week.

Mrs. Ben May, who has been confined to her room the past few days, is improving.

Mrs. P. C. Henry is on the sick list this week.

Mrs. L. P. May and son, Byron, were the guests of Mrs. Daisy Oliver Saturday.

Arthur the little son of Russell Watson, of Caney, visited Ralph and Robert Bally this week.

Montie Frisby who is attending school at West Liberty was at home Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Lou Henry visited her sister, Mrs. Lizzie Oliver a few days this week.

Mrs. S. J. Mistle has informed us that he has sold his farm and will visit his children at Lexington and other places, for a while.

Mrs. Sarah May visited her brother, Ben Delusk, of Yocum, this week.

HOPEFUL.

WRIGLEY.

Bernie Elam and family, of Middle-town, Ohio, are visiting relatives and friends here.

J. S. Reynolds and family have returned from a visit to Ft. Gay, W. Va. Bert Ratliff, Stanley Blair and Leola Lewis are attending school at Morehead.

Stella Wright has returned from Boyd county where she has been teaching, and has gone to Johnson county to teach.

Florence Wright entered the West Liberty school January 24.

There are three new cases of small pox at Redwine—John Todd, Everett Todd and Proctor Lewis.

It looks pitiful, indeed, to see so many men out of employment, but just wait! Don't shed any crocodile tears until after Harding's inauguration. And watch the dispossessed oil-owners line up with the disgruntled millions of office seekers.

The new phototype must be getting somewhat tame. We noticed that the last issue was printed with the devil standing on his feet. The one before looked like he might have been standing on his head part of the time.

"Mickle" gets there, on his feet or on his head. He is a permanent fixture in this office.—Editor.

Have you noticed the difference in the merchants? When prices were soaring and he was asked the price of anything he would swell up and look pleased and say: "I'm selling this for less than wholesale prices." But now ask him to come down like other people and he looks like he could bite you. Let them come down like they went up. The Good Book doesn't say that no dishonest merchants and lawyers shall enter heaven, but it does say that all flirts shall have their part in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone.

(Our scribbles have overlooked the fact that the merchants who advertise in the Courier have been coming down to the lower prices.)

You have not "cured ourselves." We are anxious to see you tuckled in for the cures.

AGRICOLA.

Mrs. Martha Walter and daughter, Freonie, visited the former's daughter, Mrs. Clay Rose, at Lee City, this week.

Bernard Howard, of White Oak, as in town the first of the week on business.

Will Kemplin made a business trip to Breathitt county the last of the week.

Miss Gladys Stacy and Mr. Anderson Lacy, of Stacy Fork, were married Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Stacy and is a lovable and accomplished young lady, very popular in this vicinity. The groom is the son of Stewart Lacy and is a young man of the character and ability. We wish them much joy and success.

G.

FLORESS.

Mrs. T. H. Day, of Lenox, Mrs. C. H. Black, of West Liberty, and Mrs. J. V. Henry, of White Oak, have been visiting their mother, Mrs. W. T. Easterting, who has been very ill.

Miss Nettie Cox visited relatives at Lenox, Saturday and Sunday. She was accompanied home by Miss Elsie McClain who will visit relatives for a few days.

Chilton Hammond and John Davis of Forest, were at Floress Sunday.

Mrs. Laura Hoffman, of Charleston, W. Va., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Elmer Elam this week.

Henry and Roy Glum, of Dingus, attended singing here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Oney and little daughter, Ruth, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Oney at Harper this week.

Mrs. Sallie Lacy is visiting her son, Willie Lacy this week at Dingus.

SHORTLY.

GRASSY CREEK.

Eld. W. L. Geyson, who has been holding a revival meeting at Pleasant Hill, Lick Fork and other places, returned home Saturday, and reported good results.

There is a revival meeting in progress at the old Rose church, conducted by Elders J. F. Walters, J. H. Wilson and others. They are having good success.

Eld. C. F. Testerman, who has been pastor of Grassy Creek church for many years, preached his valedictory sermon Sunday and tendered his resignation as pastor, preparatory to leaving the field. The church and the community in general regret very much to give Eld. Testerman up, as he is one of the most prominent ministers, and one of the most useful citizens in the whole county. He will be greatly missed in the church.

Messrs. E. J. Lykins, Victor Geyson, James Nickell and Ora Amos, who have been working at Lenoir and other points up the Kentucky river, have returned home.

The telephone company owning the different lines extending from R. Child's, on Grassy to Cannel City and their poles, have employed a crew of hands to put up the new posts where necessary, tightening the lines and to then a general overhauling.

There is a number of candidates in the field, and they keep coming, and those who ask the support of the good citizens will claim to perform the duties of the office to which they aspire, but they have all made their own record, and let that record be the criterion by which we vote.

Courier-Journal

The Great Paper of the Southland

The Courier-Journal is ably edited; it is sane and dignified in its handling of news; it is fearless, yet fair, in its editorial utterances; and it will always be found the champion of clean government.

The Courier-Journal surpasses all its competitors in equipment for getting the news of the day, because it has not only the Associated Press dispatches but the full wire service of the New York Times. In addition it maintains staff correspondents at Frankfort and at Washington.

NO KENTUCKY HOME IS COMPLETE WITHOUT IT.

By special arrangements we are now able to offer

THE DAILY COURIER-JOURNAL

AND THE

LICKING VALLEY COURIER.

Both one year, by mail, for only $5.50

This offer applies to renewals as well as new subscriptions, but only to people living in Kentucky, Tennessee or Indiana. New subscriptions may, if desired, start at a later date, and renewals will date from expiration of present ones.

If you prefer an evening newspaper, you may substitute The Louisville Times for The Courier-Journal.
